

Gastroenterology

Pathophysiology and Targeted Biological Therapy in Crohn's Disease

Abstract & Clinical Learning:

Crohn's disease is a chronic transmural inflammatory bowel disease. This review highlights the role of TNF-alpha and the efficacy of monoclonal antibodies like Adalimumab (Humira) in managing severe refractory cases. We focus on mucosal healing as the primary clinical endpoint.